Botanical and technical accuracy

Supporting options: choose one primary comment first, then add supporting comments only if the narration has room. Text is lightly normalized for readability; usernames and profile details are intentionally omitted.

1	"ube IS yam. "Ube" is a Filipino term which translates to yam in English. Also, not all ube or yam is purple, there are white varieties as well."
2	"the term purple yam is used to easily describe it to non-filipinos. real ube is actually endemic to philippines."
3	"Nope, it's a purple yam, totally different from a sweet potato"
4	"We work directly with ube producers in the Philippines, whom we have met in person. In France, it is a real challenge to share Filipino culture through ube, because many people think it is only a drink, while many brands sell bright pink powder that is actually purple sweet potato, not real ube. We encourage our customers to discover authentic ube halaya and the iconic pastries made with ube in the Philippines. One day, we hope everyone will know that ube comes from the Philippines and that it is a purple yam. "
5	"ube is a purple yam, its very popular in asian countries and originated in the phillipines!"

Editor note: crop or blur usernames and profile photos. Keep this comment bank nearby while assembling the layered 9:16 sequence.